QMASTOR SECURES MAJOR CONTRACT WITH ANGLO COAL AUSTRALIA TO PROVIDE COMPLETE END TO END SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT

October 10, 2007

QMASTOR Limited (ASX: QML) - Australia's leading supplier of bulk material management information systems and services - announced today that it has secured a substantial contract with Anglo Coal Australia for the provision of its Pit to Port.net® and iFuse® software systems across all of their Australian sites. The contract complements the existing QMASTOR marketing and logistics system in operation through the provision of additional functionality including pit to product stockpile management at each mine site. The unified system will provide complete End to End supply chain management.

The scope of the contract involves:

- Pit to product stockpile supply chain management
- Material tracking and stockpile management
- Planning, forecasting and reconciliation
- Transportation
- Coal blending and grade control
- Automated data extraction & interfacing via iFuse®
- Web based reporting

Managing Director Trent Bagnall stated: "QMASTOR is privileged to be once again chosen as the preferred supplier for supply chain software systems throughout Anglo Coal Australia."

"A vital component of our operating strategy involves building and maintaining long term business partnerships with global resource companies and this contract win signifies our ability to secure and retain Anglo Coal Australia as a valued client."

"QMASTOR expects the majority of the revenue from this contract to flow into this financial year."
